

Author Information

Sue Edwards is associate professor of Christian education (her specialization is women's studies) at Dallas Theological Seminary where she has the opportunity to equip men and women for future ministry. She brings over thirty years of experience into the classroom as a Bible teacher, curriculum writer, and overseer of several megachurch women's ministries. As pastor to women at Irving Bible Church and director of women's ministry at Prestonwood Baptist Church in Dallas, she has worked with women from all walks of life, ages, and stages. Her passion is to see modern and postmodern women connect, learn from one another, and bond around God's Word. Her Bible studies have ushered thousands of women all over the country and overseas into deeper Scripture study and community experiences.

With Kelley Matthews, Sue has coauthored Leading Women Who Wound: Strategies for Effective Ministry, New Doors in Ministry to Women: A Fresh Model for Transforming Your Church, Campus, or Mission Field, and Women's Retreats: A Creative Planning Guide. Sue and Kelley have joined Henry Rogers to coauthor Mixed

Ministry: Working Together as Brothers and Sisters in an Oversexed Society.

Sue has a doctor of ministry degree from Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary in Boston and a master's in Bible from Dallas Theological Seminary. With Dr. Joye Baker, she is overseeing a new Dallas Theological Seminary doctor of ministry degree in Christian education with a women-in-ministry emphasis.

Sue has been married to David for thirty-nine years. They have two married daughters, Heather and Rachel, and five grandchildren. David is a CAD applications engineer, a lay prison chaplain, and founder of their church's prison ministry.
