

Contents

Introduction: A Tale of Two Oxford Atheists

Part 1: Responding to Scientific and Philosophical Challenges

1. Is Faith Irrational?
Additional thoughts by Greg Koukl
2. Are Science and Christianity at Odds?
Additional thoughts by John Warwick Montgomery
3. Are Miracles Possible?
Additional thoughts by Gary Habermas
4. Is Darwinian Evolution the Only Game in Town?
Additional thoughts by William Dembski
5. How Did the Universe Begin?
Additional thoughts by Doug Geivett
6. How Did Life Begin?
Additional thoughts by Fuz Rana
7. Why Is the Universe Just Right for Life?
Additional thoughts by Jay Richards
8. Has Science Shown There Is No Soul?
Additional thoughts by Jonalyn and Dale Fincher
9. Is God Just a Human Invention?
Belief in God: Natural, Yes — But Is It Rational? by Garry
DeWeese

Part 2: Responding to Moral and Biblical Challenges

10. Is Religion Dangerous?

Christianity, Truth, and Danger by Doug Groothuis

11. Does God Intend for Us to Keep Slaves?
Additional thoughts by Paul Copan
12. Is Hell a Divine Torture Chamber?
Additional thoughts by Doug Blount (not yet confirmed)
13. Is God a Genocidal Bully?
Additional thoughts by Clay Jones
14. Is Christianity the Cause of Dangerous Sexual Repression?
Additional thoughts by Kerby Anderson
15. Can People Be Good Without God?
Additional thoughts by Mark Linville
16. Is Evil Only a Problem for Christians?
Additional thoughts by Randy Alcorn
17. What Good Is Christianity?
Additional thoughts by Glen Sunshine (not yet confirmed)
18. Why Jesus Instead of the Flying Spaghetti Monster?
Finding Jesus by Darrell L. Bock

Conclusion: A Tale of Two Ordinary Believers

Appendix A: Resources for Engaging the New Atheism and Thinking About God

Appendix B: Dealing with Doubt Along the Journey of Faith

Appendix C: Is the New Testament Filled with Contradictions and Corrupted Texts?

Notes

About the Authors

Index